Thank You

As we head towards the end of another school year, I wanted to take a moment to thank you for your continued support for our schools, and to reflect briefly on what has been a very significant moment for me personally. After 37 years in education - and 11 of those leading the White Hills Park Trust - this will be my final newsletter as I prepare to step down at the end of term and move into what I'm calling "semi-retirement."

It's hard to summarise the journey we've been on as a Trust over the last decade. What began as a small Federation of two schools has grown into a thriving family of nine schools, soon to become twelve. Throughout this journey, I've had the privilege of working alongside some truly exceptional colleagues - teachers, support staff, governors and volunteers - whose dedication to improving the lives of children is nothing short of inspiring.

While each of our schools has its own unique character, they are united by shared values: inclusion, ambition, and integrity. I've seen those values in action every day - in the warmth of classroom relationships, the care shown to every child, and the quiet determination of staff to make a difference. The support we receive from parents and carers is also a huge part of this success, and I'm deeply grateful for the partnership we've built together over the years.

Of course, our schools haven't stood still. We've improved outcomes, supported wellbeing, navigated national challenges, and created stronger, more resilient communities. And we've done it all while holding fast to the belief that education isn't just about exams or data - it's about helping young people grow into confident, kind and capable adults who know their value and see their potential.

It has been one of the great privileges of my life to help lead this work. I'll miss it deeply, but I leave knowing the Trust is in excellent hands, and excited for the future ahead under Claire Shaw's leadership.

To everyone who has been part of this journey, thank you. I leave with a full heart - and a firm belief that, in our schools, the best is still to come.
